CORBIN SHOPMEN CALL OFF STRIKE OF FOUR MONTHS

Decide at Union Meeting To Abandon Their Shopcrafts Organization and Resume Affairs As Individuals.

800 ALREADY APPLY FOR WORK ON C. V. DIVISION

Striking L. and N. shopmen in a mass meeting at Corbin yesterday decided to abandon their organization and resume their affairs as individuals. They will seek employment immediately and the superintendent's office here already has 800 applications for work. This strike, which began at 9 a. m. July 1, has lasted four months and seven days.

News of the decision was sent to B. M. Stark, general manager of the L and N at Louisville from Master Mechanic Feather and Trainmaster Smith at Corbin, and Mr. Stark notified the local office. He said that a union meeting of all shopcrafts organizations was held at Corbin from 9 to 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning when they finally agreed and publicly announced that all shop crafts organizations at Crobin would stand disorganized and cease to function, and that all former members would resume their affairs as individuals.

Thirty-five of the original 83 machinists, 18 of the 25 original boilermakers, 5 of the original blacksmiths, 200 car repairers, and various electricians, sheet metal workers and a large number of laborers have filed application for work.

The following item in this morning's Louisville Times shows how sudden this decision must have been and indicates that the union heads must not have been consulted in the matter:

'That the strike of shopmen of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad which began July 1 will be continued indefinitely and that the union will not surrender was the issence of a statement issued by S. E. Roper, system chairman of the shop crafts, who has completed a week's conference with union officials here.

"Mr. Roper said this morning that he would not seek to confer with L and N. officials. The position of the road that no strikers will be taken back except as new employes remains unchanged, according to a statement made Saturday over the signature of President W. L. Mapother."

EPISCOPAL CONFERENCES TO BE HELD HERE NEXT TWO DAYS

The Rev. J. Howard Gibbons, rector of the Church of the Ascension in Frankfort, will be here tomorrow to hold a two days' conference at St. Mary's Episcopal Church. This conference is to explain the program for the next three years decided upon by the Episcopal National Council at the September convention.

Communion will be at 10 o'clock Thursday and Friday mornings, and then conferences will be held at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. on each of these days. The public is invited to these services and all members of the Episcopal Church are urged to attend them.

WET PROPONENTS SCORE HEAVILY

Illinois, California and Ohio Vote to Relax Prohibition—Reed, Edwards, LaFollette Elected.

By Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—Proponents of relaxing prohibition laws scored heavily in at least four States yesterday. With half the State reported, Illinois gave 400,000 majority in favor of modification of the Volstead Act. California defeated the State enforcement act two to one. Missuori relected Senator Reed, and New Jersey s Governor Edwards to the Senate, both wets. Wisconsin also reelected Senator LaFollette, classed as an anti-prohibitionist. Two-thirds of the precincts in Ohio gave 5600 majority for beer and wine amendment.

77 U. M. W. MEN FACE TRIAL FOR HERRIN MASSACRE

Cases Set For Today Embrace 262 Indictments For Conspiracy, Murder, Rioting And Assault.

19 KILLED LAST JUNE AT LESTER STRIP MINE

By Associated Press

Marion, Ill., Nov. 8.—Seventy-seven men, members of the United Mine Workers of America, are scheduled to face Judge D. T. Hartwell in Circuit Court November 8, charged, ni 262 indictments, with murder, conspiracy to murder, rioting and assault to murder.

The charges are the outgrowth of the killing of nineteen non-union men near Herrin June 22, following the attack on the Lester Strip mine.

Ninety-two of the indictments now charge murder, 58 allege conspiracy to murder, 58 rioting, and the remaining 54 assault to murder.

The first case on the docket accuses 48 of the defendants of the murder of Howard Huffman of Huntington, Indiana, a steam shovel operator. Judge Hartwell has indicted that this case because of its position on the docket, will be called to trial first, although Attorney General Edward J. Brundage, who directed the work of the grand jury, said he preferred to try Otis Clark first, the first man indicted, charged with the murder of C. K. McDowell, the mine superintendent, and the first mine man killed.

Since the original indictments were returned the grand jury, at an adjourned session, reindicted the 48 men named jointly for the murder of Hoffman, charging them with the murder of Ignace Kubinis, one of the non-union men wounded in the mine fight. Kubinis died in the Herrin hospital after the first session of the grand jury had recessed.

Charge Murder To 18 Men.

If the attorney general carries out a threat to dismiss the joint indictment for the murder of Hoffman rather than go to trial with it first, the next case up will be a joint indictment charging 18 men with the murder of Antonio Mulkavich.

The Herrin troubles were the result of an attempt to operate the strip mine in the heart of a strongly unionized county during the coal strike last summer.

In its formal report the special grand jury which investigated the affair declares that the rioting and murders were the result of a conspiracy. This conspiracy, the jury said, originated among the mine union officials Hugh Willis of Herrin, member of the state executive board of the union, who is under indictment for murder and assault to murder, was said to have guaranteed that the union will pay for guns and ammunition seized in Herrin hardware stores before several hundred armed men took up the march on the mine.

The grand jury did not return any indictments in connection with the fatal shooting of the union men the afternoon preceding the riot. In its report the grand jury stated that no evidence justifying indictment was offered.

According to a statement made by Allen Findlay, timekeeper at the mine, before the coroner's jury, C. K. McDowell, mine superintendent, shot two union men with a high powered rifle as they were in the woods near the edge of the mine property. Findlay told the jury that he saw the men throw their hands in the air and fall immediately after McDowell fired.

Mine Supt. Starts Trouble.

Col. Samuel H. Hunter of the Illinois National Guard, testifying before E. J. May arbitrator of the state industrial commission, said that Mr. McDowell, mine superintendent, was instrumental in starting the trouble. Col. Hunter declared that McDowell telephoned him the afternoon of June 21, the day before the riots, and said, they killed two or three union men. Personal investigation developed the men were shot down by McDowell, Col. Hunter testified.

The grand jury report incorporated a telegram from John L. Lewis, the President of the United Mine Workers of America, sent to State Senator William Sneed, president of the miners' local here, concerning some of the men at the strip mine. They were to be treated as common strikebreakers, Mr. Lewis said, because the steam shovelers' union to which they belonged, had been outlawed by the American Federation of Labor.

Following posting of this telegram in Williamson county, the grand jury report says, preparations for the attack on the mine began.

The jury says it made no attempt to determine the equities in the contest between the miners and th strikebreakers, but delare it was foolhardy for W. J. Lester, owner of the mine to attempt to operate a non-union mine in this district.

Refused To Send Troops.

After telling of the threatening situation at the mine for four or five days before the attack, the report of the grand jurors says Col. Sam Hunter, of the Illinois National Guard, sent three to investigate, called repeatedly for troops, but each time Adjutant General Black refused to send them because Sheriff Melvin Thaxton, a member of the union and candidate for county treasurer, did not join in the request.

"The adjutant general's office and the sheriff alternated in passing responsibility," the report says, "with neither taking decisive action to prevent disorders and protect property."

This report was bitterly denounced by attorneys for the miners. Referring to the activity of the attorney general in obtaining indictments, and to the fact that funds for the employment of investigators were raised by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce. A. W. Kerr, chief counsel for the miners, issued a statement branding the case a private prosecution by a political boss and a labor hating organization.

The grand jury report, Mr. Kerr charged, was prepared in advance by Attorney General Brundage at the instigation of the Chamber of Commerce.

KEEP YOUR GLANDS HITTING ON ALL SIX ADVISES PREACHER

UTICA, N. Y., Nov. 8.—"The six glands of the human body are like the cylinders of an automobile. The trouble is with some people they don't hit on all six—glands, not cylinders."

This is the newest development in advanced thought offered by Rev. George H. McNish, rector of St. James Episcopal church in the little village of Cleveland, near Utica.

Rector MacNish believes that if a person's glands do not hit on all six he can't be a perfect orthodox Christian.

Business Methods in Religion.

He himself mixes religion with practical business methods. He wears a collarless shirt and soiled tennis trousers and smokes a pipe. In order to keep villagers from seeking jobs in cities he organized the Perfection Candle Company becime vice president and drives the products of the candle factory to the railway station.

The rector is a war veteran—artillery officer, not chaplain—and ized an American Legion post in the village. He rebuilt an old barn back of the church into a parish house for social affairs, painted it himself, and then built a tennis court.

"Christianity demands the function of all six human glands," says Rev. MacNish, "It's the same with the church. Some churches have high idealism, but no pep—little of the practical and not much determination."

Doesn't Care What People Think.

Here's the way he defines the glands and their functions:

"In the head are the post-pituitary and anti-pituitary glands. The first determnes idealism and persons with this one alone are gullible—easily fooled. The other is the practical gland, the persons with it are circumspect—'from Missouri.'

'Two thyroid glands in the neck provide pep and power in quick mobilization of sudden and unexpected change. In the abdomen are the two adrenal glands which provide courage and determination."

Rev. MacNish says he talks plain English to his parishioners so they will understand. He says:

"Some folks think I'm a rough neck, and others think I'm crazy. It doesn't matter what they think about me—but what they think about themselves."

FOOTBALL TEAM HAS LINE COACH

Henry Wetherell, Bowdoin Varsity Man, To Help Put M. H. S. Squad in Shape.

Middlesboro High School has another coach to help Coach Poter in his work of training the Yellow Jackets Henry Wetherell of the Martin-Page Co. has lent his services to the squad and began yesterday with his work of coaching the line. The backfield and ends will be coached by Porter and the line by Wetherell. This will greatly increase the strength of the team as one man cannot properly train twenty-two men in all departments of the game

It is believed that Mr. Wetherell will be a great help to M. H. S. for he is a man experienced in the game. He has played under two high school coaches and two college coaches. He played year before last one the Bowdoin College team which plays in the same conference with Harvard and Yale.

The Yellow Jackets yesterday were given no scrimmage work but all were drilled in line charging and pass work. The backfield and ends worked in one group and the linemen worked in another. This afternoon the boys will be given some hard scrimmage work.

Saturday the Yellow Jackets will go up against the strong Richmond High School team, the week following they play Stanford—then Pineville Last year Richmond beat Middlesboro 7 to 0 and now the yellow and white must even up the score

CLEAR CREEK KILLING CASE REMOVED TO U. S. COURT

PINEVILLE, Nov. 8.—Notice and petition of removal from the Bell Circuit Court to United States Court, Eastern Kentucky district, of the case of Henry Jackson and Ernest Southard, charged with voluntary manslaughter, in the killing of Robert Fuson on Clear Creek last spring, has been received by Judge J. G. Forrester, Commonwealth's Attorney B. B. Golden and Circuit Clerk R. E Wilson.

The notice and petition, in which no reason for removal i assigned, is signed by J. W. Menzies, clerk, and J. O. Hosken, deputy clerk, Eastern Division, United States Court, Covington.

EXPECT FURNACE TO START SOON

V. I. C. Co Begins Operations at Max Meadows—Large Stock of Iron Stored Here.

The periodical rumor that the furnace is about to start up is again in the air although there are no firm foundations for the report other than that the Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke Co has just begun operations at their Max Meadows furnace, which had been closed longer than this one here. Then the fact that the iron business is picking up considerably makes the rumor more plausible than ever before.

Knoxville is considering establishing a furnace there because of the increased value of this industry. F. S. Lee says that the iron ore here is the same as thata near Knoxville, being in a vein that runs from New York int Alabama.

The furnace here, though rusty and fellen apart in some places, is nevertheless in fairly good condition and Mr Lee says they could be turning out pig iron in less than a month. There is already in stock at the furnace here about half a million dollars worth of iron so there is no doubt but that the furnace will eventually open. There has been no work there since January, 1921.

The Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke Co. has five furnaces, all of which have been closed down. These are, Max Meadows, Pulaski, Radford, Roanoke, and Middlesboro. The central offices are at Roanoke.

SOPHOMORES ENTERTAIN AT M. H. S. ASSEMBLY TODAY

The Sophomore class of the Middlesboro High School entertained this morning in chapel with an interesting program. The numbers were as follows: Bible reading, Lucile Short; chorus by class, "Merry Heart;" violin duet, Opal Shelton and Henry Sewell; vocal trio, Charline Gagle, Freda Easton and Hazel Smith; reading, Virginia Stiles.

At the close of this program, a box, decorated in the Sophomore class colors, blue and white, in which was a sum of money contributed by the class, was presented to the Athletic Association by the class president, Kathryn Callison.

ELEVENTH HOLDS OUT AGAINST THE DEMOCRATIC GAIN

Robsion Reelected by 16,000 Plurality —400,000 Road Bond Issue and Commission Government Carry.

DEMOCRATS MAKE BIG INROADS IN KENTUCKY

By Associated Press

Hon. J. M. Robsion was reelected to Congress yesterday by a majority of about 16,000 with six counties reported. While this was a substantial majority, it is far below the usual Republican lead in the Eleventh district and comes as part of the general Democratic gain. The road bond issue and the commission form of government both carried by a big majority.

The vote in Middlesboro was as follows: South side: Representative, Robsion, 72, Sipple, 58 and Seavy, 26; bond issue, 119 for and 35 against; commission government, 120 for, 29 against.

Opera house ward: Representative, Robsion, 141, Sipple, 76; Seavy, 81; road bond issue, 278 for, 12 against; commission government, 276 for, 11 against.

West end ward: Representative, Robsion, 70, sipple, 60, Seavy, 17; road bond issue, 84 for, 53 against; commission form of government, 66 for, 61 against.

City hall ward: Representative, Robsion, 51, Sipple, 29, Seavy, 15; road bond issue, 87 for, 10 against; commission government, 89 for, 9 against.

In Pineville the vote was 289 for Robsion, 219 for Sipple and 71 for Seavy. The road bond issue carried 313 to 39. Wasioto voted 136 for Robsion, 4 for Seavy and 7 for Sipple.

Robsion had a general lead through the county, although Straight Creek and Curry went for Seavy, the Farmer-Labor candidate. Stony Fork gave Robsion 240 to 20 for Sipple and 10 for Seavy.

The vote cast was, in general, very light. Middlesboro had only about 25 per cent as many votes at this election as at the 1920 election and only about half of the persons who were registered took the trouble to vote. More interest was shown in the rural districts where the road bond issue was especially well supported. Most of the women in these districts went to the polls, while comparatively few of them here did.

Democratic Gains in Kentucky.

By Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 8.—Largely augmented majorities in Democratic districts and reduced majorities in Republican districts were indicated in yesterday's Kentucky congressional elections. In the Third, Congressman Thomas won by about 6,000. He carried Allen county, which has not been Democratic since the Civil War. In the First, Barkely carried every county, including Crittenden, which never before was Democratic. In the congressional election in the Eleventh, the former Republican majority of 50,000 was cut to 15,000. In the Tenth, Langley's majority of 14,000 was trimmed to 3500. The Fifth went Republican by about 34000. In former years it was 5,000.

NASHVILLE, Nov. 8—Indications are that Senator McKellar was reelected by 60,000 majority.

Va. Ninth Elects Democrat.

BRISTOL, Va., Nov. 8.—For the first time in 22 years a Democrat has been elected to Congress from the Ninth Virginia district, giving the Old Dominion a solid Democratic delegation. Unofficial returns today indicated that the majority of George C. Peery, Democrat, over his Republican opponent, John H. Hassinger for the seat now occupied by C. Bascom Slemp, Republican, would be close 2,500.

Senator Lodge Reelected.

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—Senator Lodge, Republican Senate leader, was reelected by a plurality of 1945.

VOTING YESTERDAY SHOWS BIG GAINS FOR DEMOCRATS

Al Smith Carries New York By Big Majority—Republicans Sharply Reduced in Both Houses Though Still Leading.

BEVERIDGE AND VOLSTEAD ARE BOTH LOSERS YESTERDAY

By Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Swept before the rising tide of Democratic victories, in many States the tremendous Republican majorities piled up in the Harding landslide two years ago, were knocked right and left in yesterday's election. Republican majorities in the House and Senate were sharply reduced, but Republican leaders declare they will not be wiped out. Until belated returns from the West and Middle West began trickling in the Democrats were actually leading in the poll of House votes.

After the Eleventh Michigan district Republican victory was reported, the two parties tied at 178 each in the race toward the necessary 218 majority. Then it became plain that the deciding votes would come from the West and Middle West.

Indiana, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Michigan, West Virginia Democratic Senators displaced Republicans on the fact of the returns. In Nebraska, however, Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, was defeated. In Ohio, Senator Senator Pomerene was cutting down the lead of his Republican opponent, Representative Fess. In Massachusetts Senator Lodge squeezed through by a small majority in nearly one million votes cast. His Democratic opponent, William Gaston, friends said, will ask a recount. Not a single Republican gain in the House appeared today to count against the Democratic inroads in almost every State. Various causes, ranging from prohibition to the tariff, were advanced for the result.

Boom Smith For President.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Governor Smith's smashing victory immediately started his friends booming him for the next President.

Volstead Is Defeated.

By Associated Press

ST. PAUL, Nov. 8 Congressman Andrew Volstead, author of the prohibition enforcement act, was defeated, it was indicated on the face of returns from about half of the precincts in the Seventh district. His opponent, the Rev. O. J. Kale, is leading him by a thousand votes. Kale, however, said he was "drier than Volstead."

Democrats Gains in Illinois.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—Democrats increased their congressional delegation in Illinois from three to at least seven.

Beveridge Loses in Indiana.

By Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8.—Albert J. Beveridge was over 13,000 behind Samuel Ralston when nearly two-thirds of the precincts were counted, insuring Ralston's election.

Ohio Congressmen Republican.

By Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 8.—Returns today indicated that Ohio has elected a Democratic governor and Republican United States Senator. Republicans claim the election of Senator and returns present a solid Republican congressional delgation and strong endoresment of the Harding administration.

Mayor Thompson Again Candidate.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—In the face of party defeat, Mayor Thompson today tentatively announced his candidacy for reelection next spring.

New Hampshire Goes Democratic.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 8.—New Hampshire, normally 30,000 Republican, yesterday went 10,000 Democratic.

THE GREATEST ENDURING POWER

Addressing a meeting of teachers in a Southern city recently, a speaker said: 'One good mother is worth a dozen good institutions."

There is a world of truth and matter for thought in that brief sentence Noble Cornelia, pointing to her children says: These are my jewels! Mary prays at the foot of the cross, proving to the world that mother love endures to the grave! The mother of Napoleon reminds her Emperor son of his errors and that he is still subject to her authority! Mothers since the beginning have exercised power and influence in the universe.

What are institutions but the crystalized dreams of motherhood! Woman is the portal of the body and the soul! Eve stood equal with Adam despite the record of the allegory, and from her descends the vital spirituality of the race.

Motherhood alone endureth all the things Suffereth all things to the end of ultimate sacrifice. In primeval days or princely palace the mother gives herself wholly, unreservedly to the protection and development of the child evolved from her being. She guides its first wavering steps, implants the tendrils of her love in its questing baby mind, nurtures its budding soul as she nurtures its dependent body, whispers it of the goodness of the world and of the glory which awaits beyond the stars!

We build and maintain institutions yes; and that is well, but the foundation of each of these is cemented by mother love. Education, religion, art, literature—divorce from these the essence of mother love and they pass at once to nothingness.

A good mother, indeed, is worth many institutions. There would be no good institutions were it not for good mothers. From the mother flow the saving influences which fashion the spirit and character of the child The child builds and achieves as the result of the mothers influence and infinite yearnings, whose influence even death may not abate.

Look to the battle field ,to the roaring marts of commerce and trade, to the list of law and politics, and to the primrose paths of dalliance and error, to the labyrinths of crime — the mother is there, there in the heart of her children' And if the infinity of her love appears sometimes to fail and fail to save its object, in the judgment of men, let it be remembered that the Creator of suns and systems of suns, of souls and stars, of faith and flowers, never nullifies His own greatest law— the Law of Love. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

CONSTRUCTIVE REVOLUTION

The upturn in the political administration in Italy was the result of revolt by conservatives against radicalism. The Fascisti faction formed to express the revulsion of the better class of citizenry against the force and violence of the Facta regime. The revolt was not against the form of government; it was revolution as applied to bolshevik administration by the socialist politicians.

The Fascisti uprising brought about a cabinet crisis and a change in the ministry. The crown was untouched. The king simply recognizes the successful Fascisti forces as an expression of the popular will. He invites the leader of the revolutionaries to form a new ministry. The invitation is accepted. The Socialists are out. The signs are that the revolution ends with the shift in the control of governmental affairs.

Ordinarily, cabinet changes are brought about in Italy, as in England by majority opinion as expressed in elections and as interpreted by political leaders. What has happened in Italy was brought about by excesses on the part of the radicals Feeling that they had protection in high places the extremists among the socialists resorted to violence in several Italian cities. Their excesses brought reprisals. At the time of the Fascisti formation for the march to Rome, the conservatives in action numbered 1,000,000 men. Of that number probably 500,000 were qualified for active military duty. Such a force, moving with determination and speed, was overwhelming. The Facta element realized that it was beaten There were few attempts at resistance against the rising tide. A little scattering gunfire served merely to punctuate the sentence of death for Bolshevism in Italy —Louisville Times.

U. M. W DISTRICT 19 HEAD SPEAKS

Wants Public Esteem For Union And Co Operation Of Mines And Operators

The Daily News office is in receipt of a letter from William Turnblazer, new president of District 19, United Mine Workers, in which he makes an appeal to miners and operators. The text of the letter which follows:

In assuming the duties of Provisional President of District Nineteen, United Mine Workers of America, I am not unmindful of the very grave responsibilities attached to this office and mentering upon the work. It will be my firm purpose to so shape the course of the affairs of our Union as to merit public esteem and likewise the cooperation of the miners and operators of this important coal producing district

"Having spent several years in this District as a field workers, I am acquainted with the needs and requirements of the hour and shall be found contributing my best efforts in the upbuilding of our union and promoting harmony and co-operation among its members I greatly appreciate the trust reposed in me by the International President, John L Lewis, who has in mind the larger things for the miners of District 19. It will be my purpose to outline a policy that will invite the co operation and support of those associated with me officially in this work and also the members of our union, and in line with the declared policy of the International Union, it will be my duty to see that all of the existing contracts are faithfully observed and carried out, both in letter and in spirit. It will be my constant aim and steady purpose to do everything in my power to avoid strikes and friction in this District so that the full power and influence of our union may be utilized to stabelize conditions in the mining industry of Eastern Kentucky and Tennessee. I shall endeavor to render the maximum service of which I am capable and to apply myself studiously to the work at hand and to cooperate with our Local Unions everywhere in the adjustment of any complaints that may arise from time to time under the existing agreements and I mast earnestly invite our members to be patient until I can organize my field force and shape the course of the organization along such lines as will be necessary for the advancement of our members.

'I have the utmost confidence in those who may be appointed with me to carry out this work and believe the outlook for the future of District 10 is somewhat brighted because of the action taken by the International Union in taking over the affairs of this district to insure the stability of its contracts and the upbuilding of the organization. I have every reason to believe that I will receive the wholehearted support of the operators and miners in the discharge of my duties as Provisional President of District No. 19, United Mine Workers of America.—William Turblazer, Provisional President."

BERTON BRALEY'S DAILY POEM

NO USE AT ALL

By Berton Braley

I started out in my career
To get the money while I could,
For though the poets scoff and sneer,
To have a bunch of kale is good.
And in life's swift and busy whirl
I gathered jack with all my skill,
But failed to win me any girl,
And what is jack without a jill?

What though my balance at the bank
Be beautiful to gaze upon,
I find my life is bleak and blank
Without a girl to spend it on;
So though I toiled with all my might
To put the cold cash in my till
I find my work is wasted, quite;
For what is jack without a Jill?

Put money in your purse; 'twill give
The laugh to want and hunger dread,
It makes things brighter while you live
And pays to plant you when you are dead;
But having money lacks in pith.
It brings no fun, no joyous thrill,
Without a girl to share it with,
For what is jack without a Jill?

HONEYMOONERS ABROAD

BY ZOE BECKLEY

In London that night Jack was entering his hotel room, worn out but excited. He had been under a tremendous nervous strain. On the one hand, as Cousins had said over the cross-channel telephones to Stanley, he was preparing the shroud for Cousins' position as European manager. Two or three more days and the chain of evidence of the man's crookedness and treachery would be complete.

Across the ocean, one of the vice-presidents of the American Electric Supply Corporations was speeding to take charge of the situation. Everything pointed to a successful culmination of the mission on which Jack had been sent abroad. Reward would be sure. Promotion; increase in salary.

But he had not heard from Edna for several days Not one word in reply to his three letters. He knew she was resentful of being dragged away from sightseeing at the behest of his mission. But that did not excuse her lack of loyalty. She should have had a thought for his peace of mind—this mind of his that belonged to the firm which was paying him more than a comfortable salary and financing their trip abroad. At a time like this he needed every thought to concentrate on his work. And here she was, carefree about Paris, not even thinking of him—

His telephone rang. Slowly he came out of his angry abstraction and answered it.

"Hello, Jackie—" drawled a woman's voice, "did I get you out of bed?"

"Who's this?" asked Jack, startled.

"Unchivalrous creature, not to know. It's Nella."

"Nella! What—is something wrong? Where are you?"

"Right down stair, my dear. Come down. I need your help—and you need mine."

Jack could not wait for the elevator but leaped down stairs three at a time and rushed up to the woman in the quetr reception room.

"Now!" he cried, forgetting all proper greetings, "What's happened to Edna?"

A red surge of anger overspread Nella's livid face. She rose, drawing herself up.

"Oh—Edna isn't needing any of your anxiety," she sneered wickedly, "she's with Mark, at a lovely little hotel in Fontainebleau. She's so absorbed in doing the Forest with him that I—came here—for company."

Jack stared, speechless. Then suddenly he broke into a roar of nervous laughter—

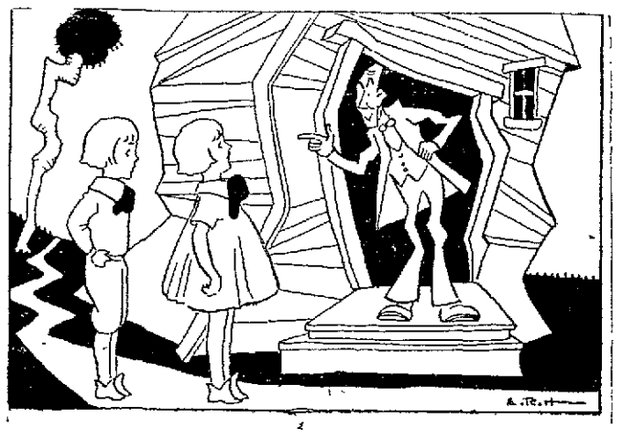
Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton



Nancy and Nick were still hunting ing for Mother Goose's broom.

Along the road they went, searching and inquiring of everyone they met.

By and by Nancy exclaimed, "I declare, Nick. This road is getting as crooked as a corkscrew. I never saw so many twists and turns in my life."

"Neither did I, I feel like the soldier who met himself coming back. We will never get anywhere this way," said Nick.

But the little Green Shoes trudged bravely on and before many minutes the Twins found themselves in front of a very crooked house. Indeed the house was so crooked that the front steps went up to the back door and the cellar windows were on the roof.

"Well of all things, this is the craziest yes," declared both children together,

But they were wrong. There were more wonders to be seen. The barn beyond a crooked fence was quite as crooked as the house, and the cows and horses and pigs and chickens looked worse than a Humpty Dumpty Circus after the baby has been playing with it.

As they were gazing open mouthed at al these wonders, the door of the house opened and a crooked man appeared. "Come in friends," he said. "You look tired and perhaps you would like to rest Besides I like to talk to travelers as they usually bring news. I am as you may have guessed the Crooked Man Who Went a Crooked Mile and Found a Crooked Six Pence Against a Crooked Stile.

"But here's a secret, the six pence is no good. No one will take it. So I keep it for a pocket-piece. And now you know about me, come in and tell me about yourselves."

So in went Nancy and Nick.

BY BILLY EVANS

During the season of 1922 Ty Cobb of the Detroit Club added several new records to his credit.

Of his several notable performances, none pleased Cobb better than his season's batting average of an even .400.

It was the third time in his career of 18 years as an American Leaguer that Cobb has batted .400 or better.

In 1911 Cobb batted the best mark of his career, .420. He came back in 1912 with .410. His ambition to make .400 for three consecutive years was broken when he piled up the mark of only .390 in 1913.

Getting an even .400 in 1922 however enabled Cobb to tie the major league record. It was formerly held by Jesse Burkett, who batter .400 or better in 1895, 1896, and 1899.

Since the close of the present season there has been considerable discussion as to whether or not Cobb really did hit .400 because of a questionable hit.

That argument has been closed by President Johnson of the American League, who has announced that the disputed hit has been allowed.

The final averages of the American League as published had Cobb at bat 527 times and making 211 hits for an average of .400.

A few weeks later the official statistician noted that there was a difference between his records and the unofficial averages. His records gave Cobb only 210 hits, bringing his average just below the prized mark, or .399.

A careful survey of the averages, showed that in a certain game, played at New York city in May, the news bureau credited Cobb with two hits while the official score sheet gave him only one.

It's a rule of all news bureaus that the official score sheet shall be followed in sending out the results. In this game Cobb hit a ball over second that Scott got in front of but was unable to get his man at second.

At first the official scorer ruled it a hit, but later changed his mind and credited scott with an error.

An investigation shows that a dozen experts were in the New York press box that day and eleven of them gave Cobb a hit on the play among them being Fred Lieb, president of the Baseball Writers' Association.

The preponderance of evidence proved that Cobb deserved a hit and the disputed bingle was allowed. The official scorer said that he first ruled a hit, and after thinking it over believed Scott should have handled the play and scored an error.

SCIENTIST TELLS HOW THE HALL TRAGEDY MADE MILLS GIRL THE REAL VICTIM

HEREWARD CARRINGTON, Ph. D.
Author, Lecturer and Director, American Physical Institute And Laboratory

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 7.—The most interesting person in the Hall-Mills murder mystery, from a psychopathological point of view, is Charlotte Mills, daughter of the murdered choir singer.

This 17-year-old girl has been called the most tragic victim of the double murder.

Scientific examination discloses some startling changes. Yesterday she was a schoolgirl. Today she is a woman. Yesterday her mood and manner and tastes were of the child, her instincts child. Today in thought and action and dress she is an adult. One does not even have to talk to Charlotte Mills to see these changes.

What caused this quick transition?

Shock, first of all. Then grief, hotly tempered with anger. These emotions no doubt prompted her to demand the governor's help in avenging the murder of her mother. Instantly the white spotlight of publicity focused upon her.

Observe then the transition from the schoolgirl. Overnight she is the woman of experience—the transition mirrored in the modish clothes suddenly hers; latest hats, new gowns, bangles of extreme style at her ears, silks, striking hosiery.

It is all analogous to William James description of the groups of complexes in the human mind, each holding an interest in a different thing—and suddenly one of them vxividly brought forward by ome psychological stimulus by what James calls the searchlight of consciouness thrown on that area.

That is what happened to Charlotte Mills. Sudden stimuli of death, of grief, of spectacular environment came into her life. The excitement and the publicity acted on her subconscious mind like water on a seed, the subconscious blossoms suddenly flowering and bursting into activity.

Like a searchlight in the dark illuminating a single key of a typewriter, so certain complexes of the girl's mind would rise above the others—such as self-assertion, superiority, aggrandizement.

She now thinks and talks and acts and even dresses in a totally different way than before. Take the superiority complex alone. It follows Freud' theory of the biological or sexual basis of a woman's desire to excel other women and be more attractive.

This impulse or desire may be subconscious, but it is there. Grief, for example, may be a sincere and honest grief, as in the case of Charlotte Mills, and yet find its outlet and its climatic result in new gowns and silks and earrings.

Charlotte's face is free from the lines of mental stress. Yet remember that she is now in the spotlight, and clothes and show and display and adornment may be simply the outward illustration of the child instincts suddenly blurred by woman instincts.

Here is a girl changed into a woman by a dramatic tragedy. The reaction has been startling—but there is no hard and fast rule to measure such psychological reactions.

What The L&N Means To The State Of Kentucky

The subject announced by the above headline is much too exhaustive to be treated in one advertisement and will, for the benefit of readers of this newspaper, be divided into several bulletins, to appear from time to time in these columns. The statements will be brief, pointed, and impressive, and the management bespeaks for them your careful reading.

Approximate number of employees in the state of Kentucky	22,216
Approximate yearly payroll	$38,600,452
Annual state, county and city taxes	$1,244,000
Approximate number of passenger trains operated daily in this state	244
Approximate number of freight trains operated daily in this state	341

Accepting the census bureau's figures, the average American family is composed of 4.3 persons—which would mean 546,306 families in Kentucky. Of this number, one out of every twenty earns his livelihood with the L. & N. Railroad. The national average annual income of family heads is $933.00,—that of L. & N. employees in Kentucky is $1,737.00.

Direct, through-passenger service is afforded the people of Kentucky by the L. & N.—to St. Louis, Memphis, Nashville, Knoxville, Atlanta, Birmingham, Montgomery, Pensacola, Mobile, New Orleans and other population and trade centers of the South, including Florida and the Gulf Coast, and with direct connections through Cincinnati to all Eastern points.

THE OLD MAN'S WAY

Atlanta Constitution.

The old Man said: When the weather's dry,
And the heat fair cracks the round, blue sky;
When the friendly clouds won't tumble down,
With never a warnin'. It's time to drown!
What I'm sayin'.
Is keep on prayin'.
It's prayer that knocks where the blessin's stayin'.

That was his word from spring to fall;
Why folks ain't the Good Lord over all!
Do you think He'll keep you out o' your own
An' leave you sighin' and all alone!
What I'm a-sayin'
Is keep on prayin'—
Joy comes sweeter for long delayin'

Jes' when we lose all hope, all round,
An' listen to hear the last trump's sound,
Like the Old Man,noddin' his old gray head,
We say to the folks jes' like he said:
What I'm a-sayin'
Is Keep on Prayin'
Till you shake the gates where the blessin's stayin'.

If You Are Well Bred

You know that as soon as you become engaged to a man etiquette demands that his parents call immediately upon yours. In the most correct circles this call is always made within 24 hours after the announcement.

If the young man happens to be an orphan his nearest relative should an orphan his nearest relatives make the call. Even deep mourning does not excuse his family from this obligation.

Money paid into the Auxiliary, $124.27. Paid out, $65.

FASHIONS TURN TO GOLD

That ancient gentleman King Midas who turned everything he touched to gold, has had an incornation this season as Dame Fusion, and from all accounts is enjoying himself tremendously.

He's left his fingerprints on almost every suit, wrap or gown one sees. Evening dresses are of gold brocade, or are trimmed with gold lace or made over gold slips or embroidered in gold patterns.

Suits and elaborate wraps are now touched with gold embroidery or have gold brocade linings. The three-piece suits show blouses embroidered in gold. Evening wraps have an auriferous glitter. Daytime dresses are now trimmed with gold thread stitching or gold lace.

TODAY'S RECIPES

SOUTHERN SWEET POTATOES

By Bertha E. Shapleigh of Columbia University

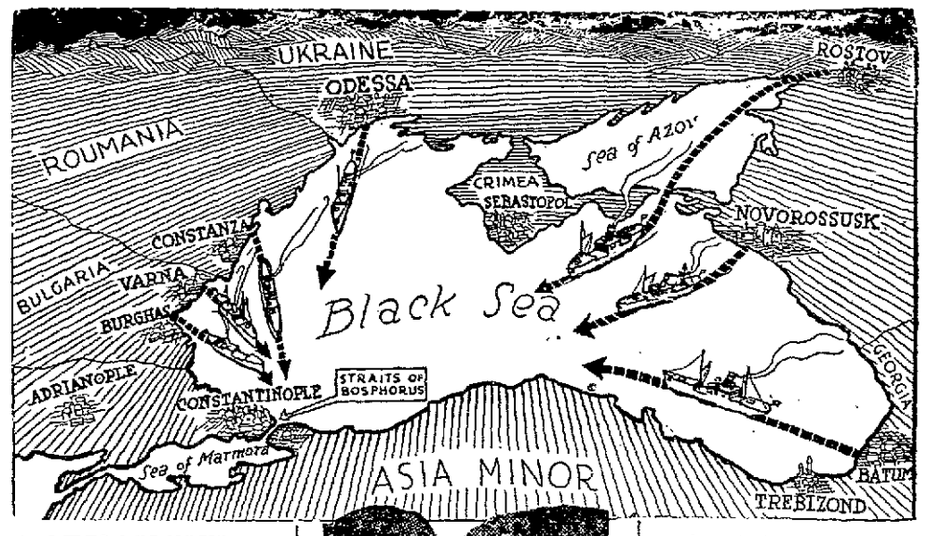
6 medium sized sweet potatoes
6 tablespoons butter
1-2 cup brown sugar
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon cinnamon
1-4 cup cold water.

Wash, pare and cut potatoes into strips lengthwise as for French fried potatoes.

In a casserole or earthern baking dish place a layer of potatoes, cover with bits of butter and brown sugar; repeat until the potatoes, butter and sugar have been used.

Mix salt and cinnamon with the water and pour over the potatoes. Cover and bake slowly two hours, basting frequently with the liquid in dish.

U. S. Dollars and Oil Interests To Settle Turco-Greek Peace



By MILTON BRONNER

London, Nov. 7.—American dollars will be represented at the Turko-Grecian peace conference, even if the American government is not.

Powerful dollars, bound up with oil, will exert a tremendous influence when representatives of France, England, Italy, Japan, Rumania, Jugoslavia, Turkey and Greece meet at Lausaane November 18.

The conference will do more than merely settle peace terms between Turkey and Greece and decide what lands Greece shall hand back to Turkey.

It will settle the biggest questions:

FIRST: Shall the Black Sea be a Russo-Turkish lake?

SECOND: Shall American and the French oil interests have an even break with British and Dutch oil interests?

Every country, including Soviet Russia and the new republics carved out of the old Russian territory — the Ukraine, Georgia and Azerbaijan—are vitally intereted. So much so that the Soviets insist upon being at the conference, where Leo Kameneff, Soviet cabinet member may loom as a factor second only only in importance to the victorious Mustapha Kemal Pasha.

The Turks and Russians agree that Georgia and the Ukraine should sit in the conference. England and France are not enthusiastic about this, but they are vitally interested in the things that come out of these countries.

A glance at the map discloses why everybody is so interested in the freedom of the straits leading to the Black Sea—for upon this sea are the ports through which must come millions of dollars worth of trade.

If the western powers come to an agreement with Turkey and Russia the Black Sea will be everybody's sea and will be open to the commerce of all nations. If the Turks and Russians do not come to an agreement with the powers, they may be able to seal up this sea and make it their own lake, keeping the oil, coal, wheat, cereals and timber locked up.

The big dispute is over oil—a fight between Standard Oil and the Shell-Royal Dutch group. Rival groups are bidding for French support in the big business game being ought over Asia Minor and Black Sea oil deposits.

Standard Oil is understood to have the inside track now with the French. And French favor is highly important, for everything hinges on the Turko-Grecian pact—and France backed the winner, Kemal Pasha, while England backed the loser, Greece.

NOVEL GIFTS TO BE MADE AT HOME

BY MARIAN HALE

November is to the average woman not only the month in which Thanksgiving feast must be prepared, but the time the annual problem of what to make for Christmas must be solved.

No matter what splendid and heroic resolutions we made last year to do the Christmas sewing before the snow came, most of us did not do it.

We need a little cold weather and some urging from the calendar to put us into a gift.

In a little shop I found some novelties prepared for moneyed buyers which appealed to me because they were novel, easily copied and comparatively inexpensive—a trinity of highly commendable virtues.

These hair ornaments, which are the very last word in fashion, apparently had their inspiration in the high Spanish combs so popular now, but they have also been subjected to French influence.

Over an ordinary back comb, such as may be bought for a small sum, is erected a superstructure of gold or silver lace, wired into an interesting shape and bound with velvet ribbons to match the evening frock.

A very charming one, shown in the lower corner, is a shield of silver cloth, outlined above and below with a triple row of forget-me-nots.

A flat comb, to be worn with a low coiffure is covered with silver cloth, then completely covered with velvet forget-me-nots.

The girl in the photograph is wearing one of the new bandeaux which is very simple to make. The band is of royal blue velvet and the diamond-shaped ornament is of net covered with sequins in shades of blue.

This is a very attractive headdress for the girl who is trying to hold her erstwhile bobbed hair to place during the trying growing out stage.

At the same shop I saw an interesting wreath of silver leaves beaded in silver and others of small French flowers which could be easily made at home for a fraction of the cost of the article in the exclusive little shop.

I also saw ribbon bandeaux merely tied in smart bows in which tiny flowers were partially hidden, and velvet bands with odd designs carried out in wooden or glass beads. All these could be easily copied at home and make very acceptable gifts for young women.

Would Give Up Own Child

The Flaming Jewel

By Robert W. Chambers

Copyright 1922 by George H. Doran Company

CHAPTER III

Eve picked up her rifle. She was trembling violently. Then, mastering her emotion, she walked over to the pack, placed Quintana's rifle and mackinaw in it, coolly hoisted it to her shoulders and buckled it there.

Over her shoulder she kept an eye on Quintana who crouched where he had fallen, unstirring, his deadly eyes watching her.

She pressed the muzzle of her rifle against his stomach, rested it so, holding it with one hand, and her other finger on the trigger.

At her brief order he turned out both pockets. She herself stooped and drew the Spanish clasp-knife from its sheath beneath his belt, took a pistol from the holster, another out of his hip pocket. Reaching up and behind her, she dropped these into the pack.

"Maybe," she said slowly, "your ankle is broken. I'll find somebody from Ghost Lake to find you. But whether you have a broken bone or not you will not go very far Quintana After I am gone you will be able to free yourself But you can't get way. You will be followed and then caught. So if you can walk at all you had better go in to Ghost Lake and give yourself up It's that or starvation. You have got a watch. Don't stir or touch that trap for half an hour. And that is all."

As she moved away toward the drowned valley trail she looked back at him. His face was bloodless but his black eyes blazed.

"If ever you come into this forest again," she said, "my father will surely kill you."

To her horror, Quintana slowly grinned at her. Then, still grinning, he placed the forefinger of his left hand between his teeth and bit it.

Whatever he meant by this gesture, it seemed unclean, horrible, and the girl hurried on, seized with an overwhelming loathing through which a wave of terror pulsated like evil premonition in a heavy and tortured heart.

Straight into the fire of dawn she strode. A pale primrose light glimmered through the woods, trees, bushes and undergrowth turned a dusky purple. Already the few small clouds overhead were edged with fiery rose.

Then of a sudden, a shaft of flame played over the forest. The sun had risen.

Hastening, she searched the soft path for any imprint of her father's foot. And even in the vain search she hoped to find him at home—hurried on burdened with two rifles and a pack, still all nervous and aquiver from her encounter with Quintana.

Surely, surely, she thought, if he had missed Quintana in Drowned Valley he would not linger in that ghastly place; he would come home, call in his men, take counsel perhaps—

Mist over Star Pond was dissolving to a golden powder in the blinding glory of the sun. The eastern window-panes in Clinch's Dump glittered as though the rooms inside were all on fire

Down through withered weeds and scrub she hurried, ran across the grass to the kitchen door which swung ajar under its porch.

"Dad!" she called, "Dad!"

Only her own frightened voice echoed in the empty house. She climbed the stairs to his room. The bed lay undisturbed as she had made it. He was not in any of the rooms; there were no signs of him.

Slowly she descended to the kitchen He was not there. The food she had prepared for him had become cold on a chilled range.

For a long while she stood staring through the window at the sunlight outside. Probably, since Quintana had eluded him he would come home for something to eat. Surely, now, that Quintana had escaped, Clinch would come back for breakfast.

Eve slipped the pack from her back and laid it on the kitchen table There was kindling in the wood-box and she shook down the cinders, laid a fire, soaked it with kerosene lighted it, filled the kettle with fresh water.

In the pantry, she cut some ham, and found eggs, condensed milk, butter, bread, and an apple pie. After she had ground the coffee she placed all these on a tray and carried them into the kitchen.

Now there was nothing more to do until her father came, and she sat down by the kitchen table to wait

Outside the sunlight was becoming warm and vivid. There had been no frost after all—or, at most, merely a white trace in the shadow—on a fallen plank here and there — but not enough to freeze the ground. And, in the sunshine, it all quickly turned to dew, and glittered and sparkled in a million hues and tints like gems — like that handful of jewels she had poured into her father's joined palms —yesterday—there at the ghostly edge of Drowned Valley.

At the memory, and quite mechanically, she turned in her chair and drew Quintana's basket pack toward her.

First she lifted out his rifle, examined it, set it against the window sill Then, one by one, she drew out two pistols, loaded; the murderous Spanish clasp-knife; an ax, a frying pan, and a tin pail, and the rolled-up mackinaw.

Under these the pack seemed to contain nothing except food and ammunition; staples in sacks and a few cans—lard, salt, tea,—such things.

The cartridge boxes she piled up on the table; the food she tossed into a tin swill bucket.

About her the effects of this man seemed to her as though something unclean lingered. She could scarcely bear to handle them—threw them from her with disgust.

The garment, also — the heavy brown and green mackinaw — she disliked to touch. To throw it out doors was her intention; but, as she lifted the coat, it unrolled and some things fell from the pockets to the kitchen table—money, keys, a watch, a flat leather case—

She looked studily at the case. It had a coat of arms emblazoned on it.

Still, stupidly and as though dazed, she laid one hand on it, drew it to her, opened it.

The Flaming Jewel blazed in her face amid a heap of glittering gems.

Still she seemed slow to comprehend—as though understanding were paralyzed.

It was when her eyes fell upon the watch that her heart seemed to stop Suddenly her stunned senses were lighted as by an infernal flare. Under the awful blow she swayed upright to her feet, sick with fright, her eyes fixed on her father's watch.

It was still ticking.

She did not know whether she cried out in anguish or was dumb under it. The house seemed to reel around her; under foot too.

When she came to her senses she found herself outside the house, running with her rifle, already entering the woods, But, inside the barrier of trees, something blocked her way, stopped her—a man—her man!

"Eve! In God's name!—" he said as she struggled in his arms; but she fought him and strove to tear her body from his embrace.

"They've killed Dad!" she panted —"Quintana killed him. I did not know——oh, I did not know!—and I let Quintana go! Oh, Jack, Jack, he's at the Place of Pines! Let me go!—he's killed Dad. I tell you! He had Dad's watch—and the case of jewels —they were in his pack on the kitchen table—"

"Eve!"

"Let me go!—"

"Eve!"

He held her rigid a moment in his powerful grip, compelled her to gaze half-crazed eyes to meet his own

"You must come to your senses," he said. "Listen to what I say: they are bringing in your father."

Her dilated blue eyes never moved from his

"We found him in Drowned Valley at sunrise," said Stormont quietly. "The men are only a few rods behind me. They are carrying him out."

Her lips made a word without a sound:

"Yes," said Stormont in a low voice.

There was a sound in the woods behind them. Stormont turned. Far away down the trail the men came into sight.

Then the State Trooper turned the girl very gently and placed one arm around her shoulders.

Very slowly they descended the hill together. His equipment was shining inthe morning sun and the sun fell on Eve's drooping had, turning her chestnut hair to fiery gold.

An hour later Trooper Stormont was at the Place of Pines.

There was nothing there except an empty trap and the ashes of the dying fire beyond.

FOR CONSTIPATION

Black-Draught Recommended by an Arkansas Farmer Who Has Used It, When Needed, for 25 Years.

Hatfield, Ark.—Mr. G. W. Parsons, a well-known farmer on Route 1, this place, says: "I keep Black-Draught in my home all the time. It is the best all-around medicine I have ever found for the liver and for constipation. We began using it 25 or more years ago and have used it whenever needed since. I have never found any other medicine as good for constipation, and that was what I suffered with till I began using Black-Draught. Black-Draught corrected this condition, and now we use it for the liver and for indigestion—a tight and sluggish feeling after meals, for bad taste in the mouth and sour stomach.

"My wife uses it for headache and biliousness. It sets on our shelf and we don't let it get out. It has been a great help to us. I believe a great deal of sickness is caused by hurried eating and constipation, and Black-Draught, if taken right, will correct this condition."

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, say well-known druggists here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CAR

The evenness of performance so often remarked in Dodge Brothers Motor Cars is due, in no small part, to the thoroughness with which each unit is inspected during the process of manufacture and assembly.

A trained staff of 800 experts is employed in this work alone, and approximately 5285 individual inspections are made on each car.

So exacting and rigid are the standards applied to these inspections that the slightest variation either in workmanship or material is instantly discovered and rejected.

Dodge Brothers are almost over-scrupulous in their constant aim to make each car as sound and perfect as is humanly possible.

RED CROSS FIELD MANAGER HERE

E. L. Davis Pleased With Work Here—Sure Middlesboro Will Subscribe Quota.

Edgar L. Davis of Lexington, field manager of the American Red Cross, visited the Middlesboro chapter yesterday. This was his second visit here.

He is making a tour of all Red Cross chapters in this field. In speaking of the Middlesboro chapter he expressed himself as being well pleased with the report of work done here.

Everywhere in the field chapters are putting on successful drives. Mr. Davis says he feels quite optimistic that Middlesboro will put over her quota Monday in a like manner. He says Middlesboro has seen the need of the American Red Cross and realizes what such an organization means to the community.

He offered his personal services to the Middlesboro chapter in putting on the drive if need be found for them.

The committee to carry on the Red Cross drive is being appointed today by W. S. Anderson, president of the local chapter of Red Cross. This committee will hld its first meeting at 7 o'clock Friday evening in Mr. Anderson's office and lay plans for next week.

Mount Sterling was her home before coming to Middlesboro.

Short funeral services for Mrs. Thomson will be held at 8:30 o'clock this evening at the Helburn home and the body, accompanied by Major and Mrs. Helburn, will be taken on No. 24 to Mount Sterling, where burial will be. The pall bearers here are: Dr. L. L. Robertson, Dr. T. H. Curd, A. B. Gloster, W. V. Tennent, Ray Moss, J. F. Bosworth, A. H. Rennebaum, T. G. Anderson, Roy Hutcheson and J. E. Evans.

WOMAN THINKS SHE CAN'T TALK ENOUGH

"I had gall stones for 14 years and suffered severely from gas, colic and indigestion. Doctors wanted me to go to the hopital, but I took Wayr's Wonderful Remedy instead and am now feeling fine and better than I ever did. I can't talk enough about this remedy." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the interestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Sold by Lee's Drug Store and druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

This Your Hound?

If you have lost a black hound you should read this. One black hound, extra large size, brown feet, yellow spots over the eyes, has been found. He is being kept at the Williams Store on the Pineville road. This hound has been hit by a car in the course of his meanderings and is hurt. Mr. Williams is caring for him but would be glad to turn him back to you if this is your hound.

Rub Rheumatic Pain, Soreness, Stiffness

What's Rheumatism? Pain only. Stop drugging! Not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" directly upon the "tender spot" and relief comes instantly. 'St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism and sciatica liniment, which never disappoints and cannot burn the skin.

Limber up! Quit complaining! Get a small trial bottle from your druggist, and in just a moment you'll be free from rheumatic and sciatic pain, soreness, stiffness and swelling. Don't suffer! Relief awaits you. Old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" has relieved millions of rheumatism sufferers in the last half century, and is just as good for sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, backache, sprains and swellings.
